SILVERITES' SESSION

Opening Day of the National Silver Convention.

LARGE CROWD IN ATTENDANCE

The First Methodist Church of Chicago the Place of Gathering—Mayor Harrison Delivers an Address of Welcome and the Delegates Proceed to Business.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—The delegates to the opening session of the national silver convention, a gathering which according to one of the prime movers of the affair is to "sound the first gun for financial independence from British dictation" were slow in getting together at the First Methodist church. Possibly out of respect to the sacred character of the edifice no banners were displayed with but a solitary exception, a small silken bannerette which marked the place of the Indiana delegation and bore the inscription, "Free coinage of silver, special privileges to none."

The Iowa delegation, with General John B. Weaver marching at its head, was one of the earliest to put in an appearance, and the Colorado contingent came close behind.

While the convention was getting together there was an utter lack of enthusiasm. Not a solitary handclap greeted any of the distinguished men when they were recognized and, even Mayor Harrison came in to deliver the address of welcome without a single token of recognition. There was but a single woman delegate on the floor, Mrs. Josephine Moody Luthie, a member of the Denver bar.

At a quarter after 10 o'clock General A. J. Warner, as president of the bimetallic league, called the convention to order, but it was fully 15 minutes before a semblance of quiet was secured. At this time every seat in the gallery and on the ground floor had its occupant, and the aisles with the rear of the house were packed with people on their feet. Hearty applause greeted Mayor Harrison when he was introduced to welcome the delegates. He said the men before him were certainly earnest. Some said they were wild, that they were silver lunatics. He was glad to welcome such lunatics. There had been such lunatics since the beginning of history.

Mayor Harrison proceeded to deal at length with the silver question, incidentally paying his respects to the New York plutocrats. He urged the delegates not to go wild nor to create any new "isms," not to go in for fiat money. Let them have but one cry, but one platform, that the money of the country should be placed side by side, gold to silver, doing their work as it was given them to do.

Mayor Harrison concluded amid prolonged applause and it was resumed when Thomas W. Patterson of Denver was presented to respond in behalf of the delegates.

Mr. Patterson spoke in an energetic strain and was repeatedly applauded. He said that Chicago and the country needed conservative council and conservative advice. They could get it from the bimetallicists, for they were the conservatives. The present situation could only be arrested by placing on the statute books the legislation recommended by the conservative men of the country.

Every day reputable citizens of Denver were arriving from that place on deadhead freight trains and people had declared that they should be well watched. If there was danger of anarchy who would produce the anarchy? (Cries of the millionaire.) If there was danger of looting the banks who would be the cause of it? (Yells of "gold bugs" and "millionaires.")

Should these men be thrown as paupers upon the charity of the land? (Cries of "No.") Let the bankers of Chicago when they meet to determine what was to be done in the present situation, let them remember that it was their financial system that had stricken down silver.

These gentry had a boomerang before them. So far as the people of Colorado were concerned, they had never taken a selfish view of the situation. The unanimous demand in the west was for free coinage, such as Washington and Hamilton and Monroe gave to the country when Jackson was president. They desired to call back to their shops the discharged mechanics now wandering over the United States. Where were the real anarchists? They were sitting behind the banking counters; they were turning the people out of their homes; they were dragging down prices and robbing everybody of their property. The American people had the right and they would ultimately triumph. A year from now they would be singing psalms of triumph.

Mr. Patterson concluded amid a torrent of applause, and General A. J. Warner then began his address as temporary chairman.

He said that a most extraordinary condition of affairs meets the assembly of the convention. Almost profound peace prevailed over the world, the earth had yielded her fruits in abundance, and the rich harvest was being gathered under favoring skies. There was enough, and to spare, and yet never before in the history of the country had there been such widespread fear and disgust; never before such a loss of confidence and destruction of credit. Industries everywhere were breaking down; laborers by tens of thousands were being thrown on the streets with want staring them in the faces. Trade was stagnant, business of all kinds in a state of semi-suspension. Scores of banks, most of them prudent managed and showing as they closed their doors assets, which, under ordinary circumstances, would place them above suspicion, were driven into suspension. There was also a shrinkage in the prices of stocks of $1,000,000,000, extending to all gold countries. Altogether the financial situation was unparalleled. There must be some adequate cause for such a general depression in the financial condition. To attribute this condition of affairs to the present purchase law in the United States was to magnify a molehill into a mountain, even if the law were not in itself beneficial.

To attribute the present financial conditions to the so-called Sherman law implied a state of ignorance that exists nowhere outside of banks, chambers of commerce and boards of trade that reiterate pro forma such declarations. The object lesson, therefore, so far as was intended, is a different one from that which the gold conspirators intended, as it enabled them to see the beginning of the shrinkage of price that would take place in order to go to a gold basis. One thing, however, will not shrink evidences of debt; they must be paid in the same number of dollars, though the dollars be doubled in value. If the world's wealth be $300,000,000,000 and its debts $100,000,000,000, it is easy to see what doubling the dollar means. It is paying for the world. Double the world's debts and the owners of the debts will own the world. "Yes, the great globe itself and them that on it dwell."

"It is a plot that one would think only fiends would indulge in, but evidence is abundant that no less a scheme of plunder than this was conceived after the close of the war, and the conspiracy was concluded on the close of the Franco-Prussian war. All that was needed to accomplish the spoliation of the world was to change the money standard from gold and silver to gold alone."

"The American congress will be bound; who has bound it? The same power that struck the blow in India—the gold clique of London. Will congress thus be bound? We shall see. At one blow 33 per cent was added to the debt of India. By a stroke of the pen of the secretary in council for India the silver mines of half the globe are closed, and values are overturned as if by an earthquake shock. No other country was advised with; no interests were consulted but this benefited by the act; if they gained who might lose was of little concern. If the Sherman law is repealed the last support of silver is removed, the last barrier to the establishment of the single gold standard is broken down. What will be the consequences immediate and remote?"

"The condition that confronts us is the most perilous in our whole country. We are on the brink, the abyss is next. Do the gold conspirators think this scheme of spoliation can be peacefully forced upon the American people? Gladstone expressed the interest of Great Britain in this movement in his speech in parliament, when he admitted that England held ten billions or more of the debts of other countries, and that the dearer gold became the more they would receive when the debt was paid, or the interest on the debt received."

General Warner contended that if the Sherman laws were repealed it would be the end of bimetallicism, and he would warn those who were forcing this condition that they were preparing the way for fiat money.

"This was a life and death struggle. The gold combination extended through many countries. It controlled nearly all the dailies of the large cities. The press that was once the bulwark of the rights of the people is no longer. It is in the hands of the enemy. The owners employ editorial writers as attorneys to write."

This was received with long continued applause, many of the delegates getting upon the chairs and yelling themselves hoarse.

These writers, General Warner continued, would in the days of the revolution stand in Washington's army and extolled the political policy of Great Britain. This contest was, therefore, a life and death struggle, but if this country was to remain the land of the free—if it was to remain a country where government by the people was to continue they must win and they would have won only when the money of the constitution had been restored through bimetallic coinage. The compromise they offered was to repeal both the Sherman laws, that of 1873, and that of 1890 in the same act and set the country back with the money of the constitution in full force again under the law prior to 1873.

General Warner concluded amid great applause. The audience rose to its feet and cheered for a couple of minutes.

While the apparently interminable speechmaking of the morning was in progress, the hall became overcrowded by the arrival of belated delegates until the aisles, the pulpit, stairs and rostrum were called into requisition for resting places.

As soon as General Warner had finished his speech, the wrath of the delegates against this condition of affairs broke forth like a cyclone, and delegates all over the hall pleaded and shouted for better quarters.

With a pleasant suggestion that the convention ought to congratulate itself upon the fact that there was so much of it that larger quarters than had been expected were found necessary, General Warner stemmed the wrath and a committee was forthwith appointed to look up a larger hall for the afternoon session. Committees on credentials and permanent organization were also appointed, and the convention took a recess until 2:30.

When the delegates began to reassemble at the church after recess it was announced that Central Music Hall had been secured for the remaining sessions. The floor and first balcony of this hall have a seating capacity of 1,500 and they were crowded just as much as the church had been at the opening session.

When General Warner had called the convention to order at 2:30 the committee on permanent organization reported the permanent organization of the convention in this order:

Chairman, Allen W. Thurman, Ohio; secretary, Joseph Hutchinson, Colorado; assistant secretary, Lee Crandall, Washington, and Amos Simpson, Illinois; sergeant-at-arms, Champion S. Chase, Nebraska.

The slate went through with a whoop. After this a committee on resolutions was appointed, consisting of one man from each state.

The roll was then called for vice presidents from states, and the Illinois boys got into a tangle. Representative Taubeneck, chairman of the People's party was named, but several delegates protested, and it was soon developed that there was a fight between the labor men on the delegation from the cities and the agriculturists from the country. Ten minutes were spent in arranging and then the convention insisted on the delegation polling itself then and there. The result was that Taubeneck was chosen by an overwhelming majority.

Among the well known men named as vice presidents and whose names were applauded were Captain Jack Crawford, the frontier scout of New Mexico; T. V. Powderly, general master workman of the Knights of Labor; Martin McGinnis of Montana, ex-Senator; J. H. Doolittle of Wisconsin, and Congressman Bryan of Nebraska.

From the committee on credentials came a report that 810 delegates were entitled to vote and that they came from 42 states and territories.

By this time the decks had been cleared for the permanent organization and Allen W. Thurman was welcomed with rousing cheers when escorted to the platform. General Warner introduced him as the worthy son of the "Old Roman," a statesman who had always been in favor of the money of the constitution, and there was more applause that turned into an ovation as the old man and the young one grasped hands across the speaker's desk.

Chairman Thurman plunged into his address without preface, and nearly every sentiment evoked applause and other evidences of enthusiasm.

Mr. Thurman spoke substantially as follows:

MR. CHAIRMAN AND GENTLEMEN OF THE CONVENTION:

The fight between those who believe that the circulating medium of this country should be hard money—that is real money of gold and silver and paper redeemable in the same, and those who believe in the use of soft money that is paper promises to pay money, redeemable in other promises to pay, is on.

Since the late demand in the east to have the government issue bonds and the cry that is now made for the unconditional repeal of the Sherman law, charging it, regardless of facts, with all the ills that flesh is heir to, ought to make this perfectly apparent to every thinking man, for should the Sherman law be repealed without substituting anything in lieu thereof, it means the final destruction of silver money as a measure of value and no man can tell when it will ever be restored again to its former place.

I am against an irredeemable currency in every way, but, however, if it is to be decreed that we must have fiat money, if our circulating medium is to be based upon faith alone, then I am in favor of its being issued by the government and not by individuals; because I have more faith in all of the people than I have in any particular class of people. But there is no need of fiat money, for, while it is true that there is not a sufficient amount of gold, yet there is enough real money, gold and silver, upon which our currency can safely rest, and if the people of this country are only true to the principles of hard money which were taught them by their fathers, those who seek to now issue fiat money will be doomed to disappointment, for when the people of this country come to fully realize the full import of this demand to destroy silver, they will in no uncertain sound let these people know that they are for hard money against paper money still.

I deny that gold alone affords a sufficient basis upon which the circulating medium and credits of this country should rest, and I charge that those who now demand that silver shall be destroyed are not true hard money men, but paper money men.

The best money, the most honest money is that which will give to the people as near as possible stability of value. The claims of the single standard men that this can be maintained only with gold alone, I believe have been so often disproved that it is even unnecessary to refer to it.

Mr. Thurman had no doubt that the president's message to be sent to congress upon Aug. 7, will contain the catchphrase "sound and stable currency." He wanted the president, for whom he had great respect, to define this phrase and to give the people his reasons for saying that gold alone will make the stable standard.

In conclusion he begged leave to submit the following:

"First—Let our adversaries agree to the free coinage of silver at either the ratio of 15-1 to 1 or to 16-1. I prefer the former. If they do, we'll agree to the unconditional repeal of the Sherman law."

"Next—Amend the national banking law so as to permit any national bank to issue its notes up to the face value of 100 per cent upon the deposits of 90 per cent with the United States gold or silver coin other than subsidiary silver."

"Further—To amend the repealing tax on national bank circulation."

When Mr. Thurman concluded his address, loud calls for Powderly brought him to the platform after a proposition from an excited delegate from Nebraska that a committee be appointed to draft a memorial to congress and an address to the people of the country had been overwhelmingly sat upon. The labor leader said that he was present in response to hundreds of letters from his brethren in the west who could not come themselves but wanted him to voice their sentiments

Seventy-five thousand Knights of Labor were standing on the brink of ruin. Ten thousand alone were idle and 50,000 in the east would feel bitterly the effect of the effort to demonetize silver, for the existing danger was not one confined to any particular section.

The country should be able to make its own currency without any dictation from across the water. It was time to shake off the shackles that these had fastened upon the limbs of the American people. If there had been any time in history when it was necessary to be cool and deliberate, that time was at hand. Every Knight of Labor throughout the country who was true to his constitution—and they all were—was in favor of free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1.

Mr. Powderly concluded amidst applause and then the entire convention, as one man, shouted for Ignatius Donnelly, and the sage of Minnesota was half carried, half rushed to the platform. He spoke for over an hour, eliciting repeated enthusiasm, and at times verging dangerously near an inflammatory line.

At the conclusion of Mr. Donnelly's address a recess was taken until 8 o'clock.

At the evening session Senator Stewart of Nevada was the prominent speaker.

Congressman Bryan of Nebraska followed Senator Stewart. He believed that a remedy for present ills could be found in the ballotbox.

After the close of Mr. Bryan's remarks the meeting adjourned.

FIVE WERE KILLED.

Awful Result of the Explosion of a Thrashing Machine Boiler.

MOUNT VERNON, O., Aug. 2.—The boiler of Silen & Kettles' thrashing machine rig exploded on the farm of L. Pierson, three miles southwest of Homer. The boiler flew over the strawstack, killing or mangle all the stack men.

Five men were killed outright: Will and Sidney Bell, unmarried sons of Peter Bell of Homer; Norman Silen, James Bowers and John Kettle, middle-aged men; all married.

The injured are Albert Kettle, Luta Silen, Thomas Edwards and Joseph Shipp. They will probably recover, except Shipp. Word comes that he is dead. Two horses belonging to Peter Bell were killed.

Doctors were secured at home for the injured. The explosion was caused by injecting cold water into the boiler when the water was low.

LINDSAY ON SILVER.

The Kentuckian Thinks Bimetalism Will Prevail.

A special from Washington says: "Senator Lindsay, of Kentucky, who succeeded Mr. Carlisle in the Senate, is at the Arlington. His position on the silver question, while not altogether agreeing with that of the administration, is generally in the same line."

"There will be, of course," he says, "a fight on the part of the 16 to 1 ratio men, but the pressure brought to bear by the country will be too strong to resist. Repeal will come in time. I do not think that it will be necessary to adopt any special rules to secure this end. While it is the custom of the Senate to allow practically unlimited debate, not many of the members will care to avail themselves of it. They will say what they have to say and then the matter will come to a vote."

"While in favor of the repeal of the Sherman act as speedily as possible, I am not averse to the coinage of silver at a ratio somewhat approximating the actual differences in its value and that of gold. I am a bimetalist, and the National platform calls for bimetalism. It provides, however, that the two metals be maintained upon a parity, and it suggests two or three ways in which this can be done, any one of which would be acceptable to me. A dollar worth a dollar is what the Democratic party has demanded. I see nothing in the present talk of demonetizing silver. Nobody, so far as I am aware, has proposed to demonetize it. The silver which we have will, of course, be maintained at a parity with our gold issue. The present protest is against purchasing any more of it at a 16 to 1 ratio."

Ruggles Camp Grounds.

RUGGLES CAMP GROUNDS, August 1, 1893.
Editor Bulletin: This has been another good day at Ruggles' Camp Grounds, the meetings are just glorious and though there are not many additions to the church, yet the people of God are rejoicing greatly and each meeting seems better than the preceding one.

The preachers present are all in good spiritual condition and full of the spirit and when they preach the word it is full of power.

We are now having eight meetings each day, first the 6 o'clock prayer service, then the 9 o'clock experience meeting, then preaching at 10:30 o'clock. At 1 o'clock children service, 3 o'clock preaching, the old mothers meeting at 5 o'clock also young people's meeting, then preaching again at 8 o'clock in the evening. At this 8 o'clock service our Brother, John Cheep, of Chester, preached to-night, and the people and ministers present showed their appreciation of it by frequent shouting of amen and glory be to God, and at the end of the service they rushed up to give the good brother a hearty shake of the hand that they might show the brother how much good he had done them.

Though the brother is very nearly blind, yet he is doing good service for God and the church. O, how different is the Ruggles from other camp meeting. No militia needed here; no disturbance of any kind. God is on the grounds and the people are getting good from the meeting, going home better than when the came.

ELEMENT OF RELIEF.

One Has Appeared in the Financial World.

SCHEME OF NEW YORK'S BANKS.

United States Bonds Have Reached Such a Low Figure That the National Banks Can Make a Profit by Issuing Circulation Against Them—Condition of the United States Treasury.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—A new and expected element of relief has been injected into the financial situation. United States bonds have reached such a low figure that the national banks see their way clear to make a profit by issuing circulation against them. Arrangements have therefore been made by some of the more prominent banks to increase their circulation from the minimum limit, at which it now stands, to such an amount as will materially relieve the present tension. It is estimated that $8,000,000 or $10,000,000 will be so added to New York's supply of currency within a very short time.

Orders have already been placed with the comptroller of the currency for part of the new bills, and some of the banks have bought their bonds preparatory to depositing them in Washington. Among the banks that are named as interested in the movement are the Gallatin, Fourth, Merchants', First, New York and Park.

The fourth National has already ordered $2,000,000 in bills, and the Gallatin about $800,000. The latter bank has purchased $550,000 of the bonds, and the Bank of New York $300,000. The rest of the amount will be made up among the other banks named. Negotiations are reported to be under way between the savings banks and the national banks for the transfer of a large block of government bonds for use as security for the new circulation.

The savings banks are not allowed, ordinarily, to carry over 10 per cent of their assets in cash. As a matter of fact, they generally carry a much smaller percentage, so in spite of the fact that they have been accumulating cash lately they are probably below the 10 per cent limit allowed them. It is thought that they would rather dispose of a large block of securities now and have the cash in hand than wait until the cash is actually needed—in case it ever is—and then have to sacrifice their holdings for what they would bring.

The currency movement yesterday was lighter than it has been for some time, being estimated at less than $750,000. The treasury was a creditor at the clearinghouse for $105,000, about half of which was paid in gold.

Exchanges over the counter at the treasury were about $400,000, including $50,000 in silver. Gold was paid out to the amount of $390,000, and $30,000 was received from San Francisco by telegraph.

The issue of loan certificates was increased $1,475,000, raising the total to $29,450,000.

Killed His Nephew For a Burglar.

LOUISVILLE, Aug. 2.—Hearing some one rattling at his door at an early hour in the morning Elias Dodd, at Sellersburg, Ind., placed a shotgun just below the keyhole and fired. When he opened the door he found the dead body of his nephew, Michael Cuddy, on the steps. He had mistaken him for a burglar. Both are prominently connected.

Squaw and Pappoose Murdered.

CADDO, I. T., Aug. 2.—On his return to his home, three miles west of here, Willis Corbett, a full blood Chickasaw Indian, found his wife and little baby lying dead in the yard with one bullet hole in the head and three more in the body of each. There is no trace of the murderer nor is any motive known for the deed.

GOVERNMENT FORECAST.

For Kentucky, westerly winds, fair weather.

THE PANIC OF 1873.

The following appeared in the New York Evening Post a few days ago:
"Some attempt has been made to institute a parallel between the present state of affairs and that of the panic of 1873. It may serve some good purpose to remark that the present flurry is a very trivial affair in comparison with that of 1873. In the latter the Stock Exchange was actually closed for several days in succession, because there were so many brokers unable to meet their contracts. Moreover, all the banks in the country, except those of Chicago, suspended currency payments for six weeks. The panic in that year came at the height of the crop-moving season, and this circumstance gave Chicago an advantage in the command of currency like that which has this year by reason of the World's Fair. The amount of railroad bonds that were defaulted in 1873 rose into the hundreds of millions, and the mercantile failures were many times greater at any given period of that panic than at any corresponding period of the present one."

The Louisville Post very pertinently remarks: "There is an error in this statement which should be corrected. The banks of Louisville did not suspend currency payments for six weeks, nor at all. One Saturday in the fall of 1873 they agreed to follow the evil example of New York, and refuse to depositors the money they demanded."

One bank refused to adopt any such policy. "As long as I have money I shall pay," said the President of the Bank of Kentucky; "when the money is all paid out we suspend; not until then."

All persuasions were useless. Sunday intervened, and the obdurate president was urged to join the others who were unable to pay. "Let them try first," said he.

Monday all the banks resumed and experienced no further trouble. While other cities were for six weeks worried and harassed by the "certified check" circulating as currency, Louisville was free from it.

That the panic of 1893 has not reached the degree of disaster marked in 1873 is true, and there are good reasons to hope it will not. The panic of 1873 was in fact the settlement for the losses caused in four years of destructive warfare, and we have no such period as that back of us calling for reparation.

For nearly three years we have been approaching the present crisis, which seems to have reached an acute stage. But the resources of the country have not been dissipated; we have suffered from no widespread destructive influence; we have compared with 1873, a reasonably sound currency; a currency which would be absolutely sound if the Sherman bill were repealed.

Times are hard enough truly, but not as serious yet as in 1873. It depends on a Democratic Congress to decide whether we shall have relief, or else a repetition of not only the panic of 1873, but of that long period of distress which was broken only by a return to a sound money basis in 1879."

SECRETARY CARLISLE left yesterday for Buzzard's Bay to confer with the President in regard to the latter's message to Congress.

GOVERNOR FISHBACK, of Arkansas, has survived his critical illness and his condition is now so much improved that his rapid recovery is expected.

OPINION in Washington is divided as to whether Mr. Bland will be continued as Chairman of the Coinage Committee of the House. The Courier-Journal's Washington correspondent, however, is inclined to believe that Mr. Bland will be found at the head when the members of the new committee are named.

SECRETARY CARLISLE has written a letter sharply reprimanding the Collector of Customs at New York for permitting practices by which Chinamen have entered the country unlawfully, and for opposing the efforts of Treasury agents to prevent these violations of the Geary Exclusion law. The Secretary says it is his purpose to employ all means within his power to enforce the law in good faith.

A WASHINGTON dispatch says that Hon. Thomas H. Sherley, representing Kentucky distillers, has been unsuccessful in his attempt to procure from Secretary Carlisle an extension of time for the payment of the large amount of Government tax now about due on whisky forced out of bond. The Secretary can find no authority for accepting any of the measures of relief proposed. Mr. Sherley is still hopeful of ultimate success.

SPRINGDALE.

Miss Tip Tully is ill at this writing. Leander Tully is here from Augusta to attend the funeral of his father.

There is a great deal of sickness in this community at the present time, owing to the extreme hot weather.

Misses Bernice Fitch and Kathleen Barkley were the pleasant guests of Mrs. E. M. McDonald Monday last.

Mrs. C. M. Little, accompanied by her charming daughter Mollie, have returned to their home in Madison, Ind.

Some of the young folks of this place attended Ruggles camp meeting Sunday. They report a lovely time and want the balance of us to go next Sunday.

Drs. Owens, Ford and Winter were all here on Thursday last. This doesn't look like there will be much sickness now or else there will be more, one or the other.

Elder and Mrs. T. P. Degman are at Blue Lick Springs for a week or two, after which they will leave for a visit to Indiana, Illinois and Kansas. They will be gone for some time.

We truly wished that the Superintendent of Public Schools had been in this place on last Friday evening, so that he could have had a birds-eye view of one newly elected trustee of our school. He would have turned away in disgust and said turn the drunkard out.

Miss M. Bernice Fitch, one of Bellevue's charming belles, returned home Monday after a delightful visit to her attractive friend, Miss Kathleen Barkley. Misses Fitch and Barkley attended Ruggles Sunday, and report a lovely time.

On last Sunday morning, July 30th, J. W. Tully passed from this earth to his long home. Mr. Tully was well known and esteemed throughout this and Lewis County, having been postmaster at this place for many years. He was a kind and generous neighbor. Heaven has claimed its own, and the angels are hovering around him. Interment took place Monday at 2 o'clock at Bethany Cemetery.

T. C. Miller, agent and operator of the C. and O. at this place, attended an ice cream supper given by the Christian Church at Concord Saturday evening. He returned Sunday evening on the westbound excursion, which was seven hours late, delayed on account of a freight train being wrecked near Vanceburg. The wrecking train on its way from Covington to clear up the wreck near Vanceburg narrowly escaped an accident near Concord, where one of the wheels burst, throwing one-half of the wheel through the floor of the tool car.

Candidates are still numerous, but are thinning out some as the time is near when they will have to put up "the needful" in order to get their names printed on the tickets. Some of the most sanguine have the least show, but the shock will soon come and the delusion be dispelled.

Vic Kinney, wife and child of near Paris, Ky., have been spending a few days among relatives here.

Copious showers of rain within the past few days have greatly improved the corn and tobacco situation.

Harvey Hurst and wife, of Cass County, Mo., visited the family of his father, C. H. Hurst, of this neighborhood last week.

We thought the trouble was finally settled about having closed gates on Sunday, when the local committee by a vote of 24 to 4 voted that the gates should be closed on Sunday at the fair. The christian sentiment all over the land indorsed the change made. Now it seems that there are certain cranks—for what else can they be called—who are trying to see if they can not compel Sunday opening. They richly deserve the contempt of every right thinking person.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

Sister Francis Gonzaga Dead.

About 7 o'clock this morning the soul of Sister Francis Gonzaga passed from its temporary abode here on earth to its eternal reward in heaven. Sister Francis Gonzaga has been a long and patient sufferer, never complaining of her affliction, but bearing it with the fortitude characteristic of the true christian. Her death resulted from paralysis. She was forty years of age, and known in the world as Miss Agnes Smith. She was a pupil at the academy for several years before entering, and had a host of warm friends here who will regret very much to hear of her death. She was a most devout christian, and the past twenty years of her life was entirely devoted to christian and charitable works. No arrangements will be made for the funeral until her folks are heard from. They reside in Philadelphia.

REVENUE RECEIPTS.

Report of Collections for the Month of July With Comparisons.

Collector T. C. McDowell reports the internal revenue collections in this district for the month of July as follows:

Liquor	$ 934 65
Beer	259 00
Spirits	370,809 90
Cigars	1,053 90
Tobacco	1,080 90
Special taxes	6,292 92
Total	$380,401 36

Gain over July, 1892.....$ 54,587 29
Gain over July, 1891.....$247,946 19

The increase noted is altogether from spirits, as there was a falling off in all other articles of taxation.

In view of the unusual stringency of the money market, the ease with which the taxes have been paid on the large amount of spirits on which the bonded period has expired has expired demonstrates that the spirit trade of the country is in excellent condition.

The following is the report of Deputy Collector Wadsworth for the month of July:

Spirits	$29,059 20
Cigars	706 65
Tobacco	144 15
Special taxes	543 12
Total	$30,512 12

FOSTER'S FAILURE.

The Ex-Secretary of the Treasury in a Bad Light.

STARTLING REVELATIONS.

The Bank's Deposits Were Overdrawn $200,000, of Which Amount Foster Got $136,000—His Partner and Clerks Also Came In—So Did a Mrs. M. Carter of New York.

POSTORIA, O., Aug. 2.—An investigation of the failure of ex-Governor Charles Foster, instigated by the creditors of his bank and other business ventures, has developed a startling state of affairs.

It has been shown that Foster was not the victim of misfortune, but that he has been guilty of grossly mismanaging not only his own money, but that of others entrusted to him. He overdrawed his account in his own bank to the amount of $136,000, while his partner overdrawed his account more than $8,000. These are in the schedule of the bank's resources, and as a matter of fact are not worth a dollar. No value is put on them.

Mr. Foster was not the only one who overdrawed his accounts, who took the money that the farmers and clerks and railroad men saved up and put in his pocket. John E. Wilkinson is shown by the schedule to have overdrawn his account by $6,044.97. The appraisers return the value of this "resource" at nothing. George B. Fralick overdrawed his account to the extent of $5,614.21, and the appraisers place the value of the claim at nothing.

Clerk Fred C. Myers overdrawed his account $317.72; valued at $158.86. W. S. Jackson, another clerk, overdrawed $571.21; the claim is appraised at $285.60. The total amount of these "resources" is $161,582.92; appraised value, $12,820.05.

Among those who overdrawed their accounts is a Mrs. M. Carter of New York to the amount of $9,361. Her name, it is said, will figure prominently in the case.

Mr. Foster has interests in a great many concerns here and abroad. He is, or has been until lately, interested in the Cunningham & Company spoke factory, the Fostoria Stave and Barrel Company, the Calcined glassworks, the Crocker glassworks, the Mambourg glassworks, the Brass and Iron Works company, the Fostoria Light and Power company, the Davis & Foster wholesale grocery, and he has money in coal mines in Missouri, in three silver mines and a great many other enterprises.

Although more than two months have elapsed since the assignment, no schedule of Mr. Foster's personal estate has been filed. Until that is done no one can conjecture what the depositors in the bank will realize.

The overdrawn accounts aggregate $230,325.79, and the value of the claim is appraised at $24,491.02, a difference of over $200,000.

A list of overdrawn accounts is given under that heading in the schedule, together with the appraised value of the claims. They are as below:

CONDITION OF CROPS.

Weekly Report Issued by the Weather Bureau.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The weekly crop statement of the weather bureau says:

The weather during the past week has probably resulted in a general improvement of crops in the east gulf, and south Atlantic states. Texas and Arkansas report more unfavorable conditions, owing to continued drouth in many sections.

On the Pacific coast the weather was especially favorable for all crops in Oregon and Washington. Generous showers over the southern plateau regions, Colorado and New Mexico have greatly improved grass on cattle ranges.

New England—Haying about finished; corn not doing well.

New York—Serious drouth in southern section and lake regions; oat harvest general this week in southern counties, yield diminished by drouth.

New Jersey—Crops in nearly all sections suffering from drouth; in south western portions fears are expressed that corn, potatoes, melons and all small truck will be a total failure.

Pennsylvania—Drouth affecting all crops; corn and tobacco need soaking rain; special reports on tobacco gives less acreage than usual; pastures short and some farmers feeding hay to cattle.

Maryland—So far corn and tobacco but slightly injured by drouth; early clover injured by dry weather, but late sown doing well; large peach yield reported from some sections and small from others.

Virginia—Drouth was severe, but rain Monday afternoon.

North Carolina—Showers of the 31st seem general, and will break the drouth in this state; cotton bolting well.

South Carolina—Cotton has made some improvement, and with good rains through August an average crop may be expected in Piedmont region, but not in the middle belt or coast counties; young corn doing well.

Georgia—Drouth broken by showers; cotton still gaining; less complaint of shedding; upland corn has been seriously injured by drouth.

Florida—Vegetation in some sections suffering from drouth; cotton picking begun and first bale of new crop marketed this week.

Alabama—Showers better distributed; cotton doing well; young corn doing well; potato, pea and cane crops fine.

Mississippi—All crops badly injured by drouth in some sections; some hay and fodder being saved; considerable injury to cotton; sugar cane, sweet potatoes and peas generally good.

Louisiana—A general rain needed; condition of crops generally good, except in some northwestern parishes; cane continues excellent but needs rain.

Texas—Cotton is being badly damaged by dry weather over the greater portion of the state; picking is in progress over central and southern portions of the state; grass and water are giving out in western portion.
